Advice on Your Presentation

- Keep in mind that you are selling your design idea to a panel of knowledgeable judges
- Make sure you adhere to the presentation requirements and submit materials accurately
- Remember the judges have limited time so need to understand and get the best possible impression of your project quickly
- Ensure your project shows technical competency and the presentation is as eye catching as possible
- Keep text to an absolute minimum
- You can include more than one image per page
- All images must be right way up to view
- All pages must be the same size; to fit the screen
- The pdf must be a maximum of 12MB
- Save each page at A4 size as a compressed image before adding to your pdf
- Use vectorised text to ensure judges can zoom in to read detail
- If you need assistance with creating your pdf you will find <https://smallpdf.com> helpful

Project Submission

Provide your presentation in the following order:

1. Cover sheet to include

- Your unique entry code
- Your name
- Your project's title
- Category entered

2. Project statement/client's brief

- Maximum of two pages
- 20pt text must be used
- Presented in a maximum of 5 bullet points per page
- Maximum word count - 175 words per page

3. Site Context/Site Analysis

- One page only
- The context must be shown if the submitted project is only part of a larger space
- Use graphics if possible and keep text to a minimum
- Any text must be 20pt

4. Masterplan/Presentation Plan

- One page only

5. Your total presentation must have a maximum of 12 pages

- To make up the extra pages you can include anything you wish that will convey further understanding of your project
- Actual models of projects cannot be submitted but may be included as an image in your presentation

At the end of your presentation (maximum 12 pages) add your entry form

The Judging Panel

- Judging will be by an independent panel appointed by the SGD Council
- The judges' decisions are final
- The Judges' comments for the winning entries may be used at the Awards Ceremony and on the winners' page of the SGD Awards website
- Should the judging panel consider that none of the work in a category meets the required standard then an Award will not be made
- It is closed judging; entrants cannot present work to the Panel

Publicity

- The publicity for the awards will be handled solely by the SGD in line with prior agreement made with its media partner
- Applicants cannot issue information to the UK press without the express permission from the SGD
- There is no guarantee of publicity for all award categories in Homes & Gardens magazine and the media partner reserves the right to make the final decision on editorial content

Certificate & Logos

- Finalists or winners you will receive three applicable certificates
- Finalists will receive a finalist logo
- Winners will also receive a winner logo
